REGINA SELF-HELP CENTER

Regina Center Catalogue 2019

In 1981, the Good Shepherd Sisters came to Nong Khai. Working at first in the border camps, they had a good understanding of the local people. Also, having worked in Bangkok since 1965 with the women who had migrated to the city from rural areas, they understood the pressures on rural families in trying to satisfy their most basic needs.

It was clear to the Sisters that these people, disadvantaged in so many ways, had no choices available to them. Lacking an education or training of any kind, employment opportunities were limited.

The Regina Self-Help Center started in 1983 precisely with the main purpose of helping support women and young girls so that they could work at home or in their community. With this support, they could then live with their families and not have to migrate to Bangkok or big cities to earn money. Regina Self-Help Center has training courses in tailoring, making bags, weaving, embroidery and making T-shirts.

Nowadays, the project is divided into two branch locations: Huai Sai, Nong Khai and Isan Weaving Project. The two branches are promoted to provide convenient work distribution and reaching out to the workers. They are all in Nong Khai Province.

Producers depend on sales for the crafts to promote their families' welfare. Women involved in the project are trained to take responsibility for management in all areas related to craft production, decision-making, accountancy, invoicing, quality control, packing, salaries and supervision.
